

I think that Broadband over powerlines is going to turn around and bite us on the you-know-where. As a Ham radio operator, I am personally shocked to see this happen, but as a citizen, I am even more so. Do you folks at the FCC even listen to the citizens, or do you just listen to big business?